

Jennifer Adolphson serves as the Preschool Coordinator at Beech Haven.

With a bachelor's degree in Special Education from the University of Georgia, Jennifer worked as a public school teacher for three years and taught preschool in a private school for three years.

For the past 14 years, Jennifer has been involved in the Athens homeschool community, homeschooling her four children and working with other homeschool educators. Jennifer co-founded and co-directed a local homeschool co-op, Wisdom Seekers, for 7 years and currently tutors preschoolers for Classical Conversations. She has been a mentor to homeschool parents and children throughout the area and served as a leader in expanding home school education.

Jennifer has been an active member of Beech Haven for 20 years, working in the Preschool and Children's Ministry as the Extended Session Coordinator, the Sunday School Children's Director, and Chairperson of the Preschool and Children's Team.

Jennifer is a native of Atlanta, Georgia. Her husband, Ryan, is on the faculty of the College of Engineering at the University of Georgia. Jennifer and Ryan have lived in Athens for more than 25 years and have four children: Mitchell, Sarah Grace, Anna Claire and William.
